

Thinking about Callum and Sephy

Division.

How is the theme of division presented in 'Noughts and Crosses'?

- Task 1. What are the events in the play which shape Callum's journey and which shape Sephy's journey – to what extent do their parents / family members shape who they are? And how do the parents / families members in both families create division?
- Task 2. Division is a key theme in literature; go back to your work on Amanda Gorman's 'The Hill the We Climb' – find three / four examples of how she represents division in her poem. What, however, is her overarching message; division, or harmony?
